„Real Craft Brew“ – Brewing like 1900

A unique craft brewing experience – brewing like 100 years ago

12 to 14 September 2018, Vielau, Germany

COURSE OUTLINE

You are interested in traditional brewing?

You've asked yourself how beer did taste a century ago?

If yes, then don't hesitate to take this rare opportunity for a time journey into the history of brewing!

Our two day VLB Workshop „Real Craft Brewing – Brewing like in 1900“ promised to teach brewing as it was in the olden days. The workshop will be held in Vielau, a district of Reinsdorf in the western Erzgebirge near Zwickau, Saxony. The local Vielau Brewery looks like a technical museum, however, as a result of extensive renovations, it is fully operational. Thus, those who consider beer brewing to be a real craft and are not afraid of physical exertion can gain genuine brewing experience there.

During the workshop we offer you to take part in a complete brew with traditional equipment. The course includes two overnight stays in a hotel nearby, transportation from Berlin, catering and beer (of course!)

LOCATION

The Brauerei Vielau, located close to Zwickau in Saxony, was firstly mentioned in a document in 1538. After comprehensive restoration works it was re-established as a technical monument in 2012. The brewery uses traditional brewing technology such as wood heating, a coolship, a Baudelot cooler and open fermenters.

During our workshop “Real Craft Brew” we offer you to take part in a complete brew with this traditional equipment.
